Bronze And Nuts : Elephant And Its Small

550 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : En l'état

Description

Here is a nutty object !
I really like this type of composite curiosity, much rarer than if it were in bronze alone.
Intermediate between the bronze of Vienna and the popular Art, one can also bring it closer to the "towers of forces".
The nuts are normally blocked by brass screws that are a bit "messed up", which makes them mobile and the welding between the baby elephant and his mother is a little crooked, so that the 4 feet do not touch all the ground. Left defense tip of the injured mother.
4.8 X 6.5 X 6.5 cm approximately.
Do not hesitate to ask for photos or additional information by mail or phone.
