Description

Early 19th century English school Oil on canvas
35x55cm (50x75cm with frame)

This view of the Thames from Richmond Hill is a famous site that was represented by 18th and 19th century painters, from Joshua Reynolds to Jasper Francis Cropsey of the Hudson River School, and also William Turner. The characteristics of our painting with this dark and vaporous way to paint, shows a style that is very close to that of Joshua Reynolds in the 1780s.
