Description

French Trumeau-Bureau of the second half of the 1800s, made in Provence in larch wood.

The rustic style of the piece of furniture and the type of wood used make it ideal for mountain furniture or a tavern.

The lower part has three large drawers surmounting from a central part used as a desk, with drop-front drawer.

Inside small drawers to store pen documents or any other small object.

The upper part has three glass doors with inside seven shelves mounted on the ladder and then adjustable to different heights.

One of the original blown glass is broken and must be replaced.
