of Baccarat. The production consisted of the manufacture of window panes, mirrors and glass services. After the French Revolution, the company collapsed until its collapse in 1806, when it was sold at auction to a merchant from Verdun. In 1816, the Verrerie was bought by an industrialist, Aimé-Gabriel d'Artigues (1773-1848). This was the beginning of the prestigious rise of the Baccarat Crystalworks. The real start of the company dates from its acquisition in 1822 by a wealthy Parisian, Pierre-Antoine Godard-Desmarest. Baccarat received his first royal commission in 1823 from King Louis XVIII. This was the beginning of a long series of orders for royal families and heads of state from all over the planet. It was also a period of strong international growth. In 1855 Baccarat won its first gold medal at the World Fair in Paris. From 1860 Baccarat deposited its trademark on its pieces. The brand was a label stuck on the pieces. The crystal production grew during this period, and Baccarat has built a worldwide reputation for producing high quality glasses, candlesticks, vases and perfume bottles.
