Description

Sculpture lead representing a putto or cherub holding a bunch of grapes and a cup of wine, certainly element of a fountain, Louis XIV late seventeenth-early eighteenth centuries. Mounted on a stuccoed wooden column painted faux marble way of late eighteenth-early nineteenth centuries. This sculpture is in its juice, it is of high quality. It does not fit well on the column and will be reattached. A report: break in the bottom of the cup (we have the piece of the foot of the cup), some accidents and scratches on the lead, accident in the bottom of the column (base broken in two, will be restored), a few small splinters and lack of stucco, wear of time, look at the pictures.
