Description

Kiz nuptial carpet from the Bergamo region, Anatolia, Turkey, woolen around 1900-1920. This beautiful nuptial carpet is distinguished by its double niche and the use of white and dark red. In the center on a red background a medallion sports large flowers in the vertical axis of these niches. These carpets, which are jealously kept in families, can be seen in the drawings of large apple blossoms in the two planks closing the field. These drawings are propitiatory grounds of fertility as well as the small black and red "sinekli" flies found in the four camel-colored spandrels. The term "KIZ" means in Turkish, "girl" and tells us that we are in the presence of a carpet for private use and village production. The main border is embellished with a string of eight-pointed stars lined with red "Medahils" and
