Description

Renaissance style table in giltwood standing on four short small feet in shape of flattened foliage scrolls. Stand in the style of Roman cartibulum, in French called "fan" table because of the shape of the stand. A crossing adorned with interlaces and rosettes supports a set of 5 baluster shape columns decorated of gadroons and ropes, joined the "fan", side parts carved in shape of two S shape winged sphinxes back to back, separated by an arcade flanked by two Corinthian columns. Above, the apron is adorned with carved gadroon supporting a rectangular marble tray framed with giltwood sculpted of canals and rosettes.
The marble tray is antique green, framed by a small net of yellow marble and a bigger frame in red Levanto marble. Rectangular inlays of red Levanto decorated the middle of the apron on the
