Description

A pair of gilded wood candelabra with five arms of light. The candelabra rest on a pedestal probably later period. It is square (21X21) curved in the corners and largely molded. A frame is carved on all four sides. Along a vertical axis, hang four arms of light carved scrolls and acanthus leaves ending in a wrought iron spike. The base is round and molded. Some lacks on the gilding (see photo), a layer of bronzine covers practically all the gilding. Spectacular decorative element.
