described as a producer of "antique and modern art furniture and bronzes". Awarded at Universal Exhibitions in London and Paris; gold medal in 1889, at the Universal Exhibition of Paris, a "Grand Prix" in 1900 and three other Diplomas and four gold medals for the furniture presented. An auction was held in 1906 to disperse the remaining furniture of Maison MILLET, which finally ceased all activity in 1918. Maison MILLET was a privileged supplier of François LINKE, and all the great families of the time.
