Description

Oil on isorel, Fishermen under a bridge overlooking the Eiffel Tower by Lucienne MEIFFREN Lucienne DE MEIFFREN 1895-1995 She can be regarded as one of the most amazing women of French painting in the twentieth century. A kind of original, which was born in the United States under the name of Jacquelin Beam. Then she came early to rub in Paris, the world capital of art until the late fifties. So she adopted the pseudonym Lucienne de Meiffren, able to revive in his eyes a threatened society, both frivolous and enchanted. In 1969, she still exhibited at the Salon des Independants. She loved the seaside towns of Dinard and Biarritz, which she punctuated with light and vibrant watercolors, always sought after by collectors.
