Description

According to Jean Baptiste Jouvenet. Beautiful oil on canvas depicting the descent of Christ. Epoque XVIII century. The body of Christ, short foreshortened in the foreground, is surrounded by a white shroud. The faces are particularly cared for, and each one evokes his suffering in a particular way. The Virgin, draped in a magnificent blue mantle, questions the sky, while behind her, two holy women cry, Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus, who are about to cover the body of Christ, show closed faces and traits drawn by pain. A great dramatic intensity emerges from this painting. Presente nature in very good state a cleaning was carried out as well as a small restoration not visible. Beautiful format: Diameter with frame: 92.5 cm diameter canvas alone: 80 cm frame thickness: 8 cm
