Description

Well, I admit, when I bought this object from a distance, only the frame interested me. I could see it around a symbolist drawing or an Art-Nouveau watercolor, but when I received it, what I thought was a mechanical tapestry turned out to be an incredible embroidery with the small point of a meticulousness and exceptional quality. The theme of the decorator of Greek pottery painting a large vase under the eyes of his beautiful being underlined by the frieze at the bottom. It is, I think a Flemish or Dutch work, signed illegible on the back with a date 1902.

The frame is in mahogany veneer with brass ornaments in the upper corners and a frieze of gilded stucco decorated with dancers Greek which extended on the sides by returns unfortunately absent.
