Description

Capipote of Saint Mary Magdalene, 18th Century"

This remarkable capipote statue of Saint Mary Magdalene, dating from the 18th century, stands 60 cm tall, 30 cm wide, and 20 cm deep. Capipote statues were traditionally carried during religious processions and dressed in different garments according to the liturgical calendar, reflecting various religious celebrations and events.

This piece, with its exquisite craftsmanship, showcases the importance of popular devotion and the skill of artisans from that era.

Well-preserved, it retains its authentic charm and is a unique addition for collectors of sacred art.
