Description

This magnificent sculpture of Saint Anne, crafted in polychrome and gilt wood, dates from the 16th century and originates from Bavaria. It stands out for its exceptional carving, particularly in the detailed drapery and the gentle, serene expression of the face, showcasing the skill of the artisans of that period.

The sculpture, measuring 110 cm in height, exemplifies the elegance and refinement of religious representations during the Bavarian Renaissance. The meticulous attention to the face and garments, along with the subtle use of polychromy and gilding, gives this piece a striking presence.
