Married to a diplomat, academy officer, she studied at the Julian academy, like me (alias Met de Penninghen only academy accepting women at the time) - In order to be able to exhibit in salons led by men, she was forced to sometimes sign Alain Kaub -

Without knowing her career path I went to this determined woman who had to af to face acerbic criticism -

A woman painter at the time was qualified as alienè as was Berthe Morisot however married and supported by Eugéne Manet - An elderly woman whose sweetness wisdom simplicity touched me, everything converges towards this beautiful face, just a letter a vase in the shade on the table punctuate the canvas -
Splendid frame with braid of oak leaves and tassels gilded with leaf -

Coté Benezit - Very good condition of the canvas and the frame -
