Description

Beautiful circular bowl of celadon jade speckled shades with apple green, light tones of ocher and white. China Qing Dynasty, late 19th-early 20th century. Tulip-shaped, flared at the top edge, it rests on a small heel; the sp and translucent jade offers a whole range of subtle nuances in daylight. Seen under the magnifying glass of a gemologist or diamond cutter 12X, its surface has very slight traces of sanding in different directions, proof that it is an old manual work. To note a natural vein in the stone. Do not hesitate to ask us your questions, we are at your service.
