Description

FAUVISM - Ciro Cozzolino - Gypsy Dance Scene, circa 1906-1912 Reminiscent of the Fauvist explorations of Charles Camoin and Henri Matisse, this work by Ciro Cozzolino depicts a Gypsy dance scene beneath large trees, enlivened by a swirling central dancer, a guitar player, and several figures arranged in the background. The composition is executed without sketching or chiaroscuro, in a direct and spontaneous stroke. Forms and volumes arise exclusively from the juxtaposition of pure, saturated colors, applied in broad strokes. The light is constructed through chromatic relationships, rather than naturalistic modeling, lending the scene a vibrant and intensely expressive atmosphere. Through its radical treatment of color, its rejection of drawing, and
