Description

Jean-Pierre Guimard signed Frédéric Heydt.
Rearing horse in front of a building with an enigmatic architecture. It is neighing, its long mane floating in the wind. There seems to be no rider nor harness despite the strap attached to it. The observer is located in a low-angle point of view which emphasizes both the power of the animal and the strangeness of the scene.

Drawing, signature in the upper right of the art, c. 1960.
Work framed and presented under glass.

Dimensions:
17.5 x 14.5 cm at sight.
