Description

A beautiful oil painting on cardboard depicting an oriental man wearing a fez or tarboosh, a typical emblem of Ottoman and Maghreb cultures. The artist has skillfully captured the features and expression of the subject, giving the portrait a realistic and expressive quality. The rich colors and detailed rendering of the clothing reflect the fascination with Orientalism, a popular art movement in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, which sought to evoke the beauty and exoticism of Eastern cultures.

The painting is signed on the back, confirming its authenticity. The overall dimensions, including the frame, are 27.5 cm wide by 37 cm high, and 18 cm wide by 26.5 cm high unframed.
