Description

Animated perspective on Chartres and its cathedral

Drawing in wash wash signed and dated 1826 by Pierre Justin Ouvrié, representing a scene by the river, the Eure, in Chartres, its famous cathedral summing up this fine representation. Parisian painter and lithographer who participated in salons from 1831, Ouvrié specialized in the representation of cities and their remarkable monuments without omitting the dimension which is both picturesque, societal and vegetal. This pupil of Abel de Pujol, godchild of Baron Taylor, a fervent defender of French artistic heritage, met with success under the July Monarchy. Romantic Vedutist, his views, although strongly structured, are part of a natural
