Description

This chest of drawers has two rows of veneer drawers and is of Italian origin, more precisely Neapolitan. It is from the 18th century and covered with a beige marble tending to yellow and also period; on the sides has been developed a decor to decorate the whole. This piece of furniture is absolutely in its original condition as it left the house and has not undergone any restoration, even if it is used. This chest of drawers is imposing by its proportions but very well structured. Notice the quality of the bronze pull handles as well as the bronzes finishing off the feet.
