Description

These chic and discreet pieces of furniture generally easily find their place in an interior. In the case of late XVIIIth century furniture, it is even easier to find a place of choice for them. The neat and elegant lines of these pieces of furniture - as evidenced by our corner - are the most beautiful effect when combined with modern and contemporary objects. The warm nuances of rosewood only raised by finely chiseled elements in gilded bronze seduce as much by their elegance as by their restraint.

This rosewood corner opens with a door and is covered with gray marble. We will notice some very slight chips on the marble. T-shaped rear legs and old restorations on the «fonçure».
