Description

The city of the future.

Glass mosaic-collage.

Circa 1960.

A panel made with an unusual technique. It is the grain of small pieces of colored glass, placed on an adhesive surface, probably in resin, according to a modernist design.

The scene represented with bright colors, of great decorative impact, arouses an emotion of almost utopian optimism. The two figures, with laurel wreaths, look like men with a bright future. In the background we see modern buildings, in the style of Le Corbusier, which represent a new and better idea of architecture, almost a vision of the perfect city. In a contemporary wooden frame.
