This 19th-century mirror, crafted in the Louis XIV style, features ornate brass repoussé work. The decoration includes rocaille and shell motifs, surmounted by an openwork pediment with an additional mirrored element. The central mirror is beveled and framed by mirrored side panels, known as parcloses, which enhance the depth and elegance of the piece.

The Louis XIV style, known for its grandeur and elaborate designs, is beautifully represented in this mirror, capturing the opulence and refinement of 17th-century French decorative arts. Although created in the 19th century, this mirror faithfully reproduces the aesthetic codes of the Sun King's era, bringing a touch of majesty and sophistication to any interior.
