Description

Very large machine for rounding clock wheels from the 19th century.

With its walnut drawer, its wooden and ivory handles, and all its strawberries and cleats.

This beautiful machine was used regularly by the watchmaker who owned it.

It allowed the teeth of the pendulum wheels to round, after cutting. It is a superb piece of decoration, if you do not use it, this one is particularly neat and its size remains quite exceptional.

I remain at your disposal for any information or additional photos.
