Description

This sculpture of Christ from the beginning of the 18th century is in carved wood with remains of polychromy.

Very well worked, the anatomy is clearly visible.

The short perizonium is held in place by a cord with a flap on the front and a finely sculpted drop on the left hip.

The head is tilted on the right shoulder, the widely open arms show their musculature, the feet are superimposed.

Nail marks on his feet and hands following his position on an old cross that has disappeared.

In good condition with small losses on the fingers and the left arm reattached. Presented on a pedestal and a posterior pillory
