Description

Superb and large French ceramic hanap in from late 17th or early XVIIIth century, decorated in blue shades with a very beautiful wedding coat of arms (to be identified) surmounted by a count's crown.

Rare Dijon (Burgundy) factory ceramic ?

This ceremonial piece directly takes a form of Louis XIV period silverware invented on the model of an inverted helmet. The valances around the ewer are in strong relief and are still a reference to the goldsmith's work. The scalloped and fluted handle at the grip is very wide and its button ends with a stylized and naive little face.

The ceramics factories of Rouen had made a specialty of these refined pieces, in particular emblazoned following prestigious orders.
