given by curious observers of ancient things. Paris, Rocolet, Besongne, Le Gras & the widow Nicolas Trabouillet, 1640; folio, 802 + table + 147 + table, contemporary full calfskin binding, spine decorated with six nerves, unfortunately binding in fair condition, missing on the spine and damaged corners, a split bit. The first page is stripped of a sentence like other copies in public libraries (perhaps a vintage censorship). Printer's mark: a boat on the Seine, emblem of the city of Paris. The first book deals with the founding of the city of Paris. The second book deals with the founding of the University of Paris. The third book deals with the founding of churches, chapels and hospitals in the city of Paris as well as the institution of provosts, aldermen and consuls. The fourth book deals with the founding of the monasteries of the diocese of Paris. A capital book for lovers of the history of Paris.
