The paintings in question, due to the high quality of the naturalistic rendering of the anatomies and the luministic effects, seem to have been executed following contact with the master Michele Gordigiani (Florence, May 29, 1835 - Florence, October 7, 1909), often far away. academic circles was in contact with the ranks of artists from Macchiaioli and with whom Carlo was able to develop his great skills as a portrait painter. The trends of the Florentine portrait are also found in the colors of the backgrounds and the atmospheric-environmental effects reproduced.
