Description

Pair of Napoleon III candlesticks in chiseled and gilded bronze, Medici vases carrying a Neapolitan fisherman holding a candlestick and a fishing net and in the other hand some fish, the second a peasant holding a candle holder decorated with wheat is missing in his hand probably a billhook.

Our candlesticks represent the primary trades of this society which is moving further and further away from the values of the land and the sea nourishing the populations for a second industrialization carried out at high speed.
