Description

Elegant late 18th century oil painting of a young woman playing the tambourine. She is presented in 3/4, dressed in a falling stole, revealing her shoulders and the top of her bust. She holds a tambourine in her hand and her cheveluyre is covered with a wreath of leaves of vines. The face of the young woman is smiling, very pleasant painting, of good quality presented in an original carved and gilded wooden frame from the 18th century. In very good condition, small visible repair on the back.
