Description

Superb box, in the shape of an urn typical of the Charles X period. Veneered in tuja heather, with blackened profiles. The lid is enriched with light-dark herringbone inlays. On opening the box, a mirror was placed under the lid; Then finds a removable compartment top in blond maple, underneath there is a secret compartment: by lifting the short right side strip, the shelf can slide to the side and reveals a space. The box is equipped with a lock (not working) and its key. The rough part below has four small fillings, in my opinion there were support feet, now missing. The object is ready to be placed in your home, we have cleaned it and finished it with shellac. Great executive mastery.
