Description

Porcelain group "Hairdresser" of five figures. With a certain irony, they depict the excessive laboriousness of creating a hairstyle. The ladder on which the hairdresser has climbed is leaned on an armchair and is supported by a young man. Two others are adjusting the mirror, one of which mockingly looks through the telescope at the barbers work. The only object of calm is the lady sitting as a pyramid. Grotesque humor and nostalgia for gallant times define reflection on the Baroque era.
