Description

A whimsical Swiss wood carving. A long hair terrier is begging with his masters hat beside a basket. Handcarved ca. 1900 in Switzerland in the area of Brienz. Signed: G. V. This great Black Forest carved sculpture would be a stunning addition to any Black Forest carvings collection or desk decoration. Very good condition. Please contact us for a detailed condition report.

The tradition of woodcarving in Brienz goes back to the middle of the 19th century. Locals were looking for new job opportunities. They used their skills in traditional craftsmanship, carving everyday objects and sculptures, and created a new activity. Many woodcarvers were educated at the Brienz School of Woodcarving, founded in 1884. Around 1900, the woodcarving industry had about 2000 carvers. Brienzen woodcarvings have been successfully presented at several world exhibitions. With Gran Tour Tourism, wealthy people from all over the world have visited the area and brought home memories of woodcarving. Today, some companies, like Huggler Holzbildhauerei, still exist and make traditional carvings.
