then in Royan and in many other galleries. From 1958, he painted views of Paris, and particularly of Montmartre, which made his success. He has access to the very famous Cercle Volney and to Parisian galleries such as the Roussard gallery. His paintings will be exhibited next to those of Degas, Derain, Domergue, buffet, Braque, Picasso, Foujita, Utrillo, Laurencin etc ... until 1969, year from which he will stop painting following complications caused by a traffic accident suffered a few years beforehand (1963). His success will allow him to live comfortably until his death on March 13, 1999 at Martoulet in Saint-Germain-Les-Belles (87).
