Description

Old watercolor drawing from the '500 titled "Falcon hunting in Lombardy". It is divided into three parts, which represent three temporally distinct moments: on the right we see the man pulling the bridle on the horse, on the left we see the man who goes hunting with the dogs and his helpers, and in the center it is painted a scene of chivalrous love, with the man greeting his beloved.

The painting bears an inscription which dates it to the year 1526 and indicates that it comes from the house of Count Arnaboldi.
