Description

Beautiful oil on canvas, full of poetry, representing a tree and a walker, looking in the distance at the landscape that awaits him.
The artist is focused on the representation of the tree and particularly worked on the trunk and the bark.

The tree has always been a central subject of art, since the Egyptians, and of several grandiose works in the history of art.
The Greeks and Romans worship them by attributing divine powers to them. And in the Bible, it is present in the most beautiful stories.

Artists always pay a lot of attention to the design and shape of the tree and the rendering of the wood, as can be seen in our work. The tree is also
