Description

Old 19th century bronze elements in the form of a column with a Corinthian capital mounted as lamps.

Fluted barrels.

Square wooden bases.

New electrification: golden brass E27 screw bulb sockets mounted on ball joints (allowing the right shade to be positioned), new wires to European standards.

The power supply assembly goes through the inside of the feet.

The lampshades, visible on all their faces, were created from a fabric decorated with learned harvest monkeys and a fruit basket on a yellow background.

Note: missing a small rosette and a ball on the top of a capital on the back of a lamp visible on a
