Description

Louis XVI secretary opening with a drawer in the upper part, a flap in the central part and two leaves in the lower part.

The flap discovers a theater made up of lockers and six drawers inlaid with flowers on a light wood background. The two leaves open onto a chest on the right and two drawers on the left, all in oak.

The drawer and the sides are decorated with a frieze of interlacing inside which are inserted quarter-leaves. The flap and the doors are decorated with a beautiful marquetry decorated with bouquets of flowers in maple and sycamore tinted in a tobacco background in a frame of double Greek friezes.
