Description

This fascinating Indonesian wooden sculpture, 60 cm high with a diameter of 35 cm, represents a stylized creature holding a plan on its head, with a design that combines tradition and functionality, it was probably used as a decorative table.

A unique work of art that reflects Indonesian artisan talent and the tribal aesthetics typical of this geographical area.

Probably created towards the end of the 20th century, this sculpture shows signs of aging that testify to its authenticity and vintage character. The gaps on the base and other minor scattered ones add a rustic charm, making it perfect for lovers of objects with a story to tell.
