Description

Richard de QUERELLES Neuville (Bas-Rhin), 1808 - Paris, 1846 Drawing Pen and ink 17.5 x 19 cm (28 x 37.5 cm with the frame) Signed "R. de Querelles" "Titled" Barraque "Henri Sigfried" Richard count of Querelles was an officer, designer, illustrator and sculptor who knew Eugène Delacroix. And Delacroix speaks of his wife Viscountess Hortense Louise Françoise de Beauharnais (daughter of the Marquis François de Beaumarchais) in his correspondence. He called her "the good Hortense" and recognized in her a taste and feelings for painting, for Rubens in particular. Richard de Querelles was battalion commander and commander of the foot guards of the imperial guard. Faithful to Napoleon, he went into exile in London and undoubtedly participated in the attempted uprising of Louis Napoleon

Bonaparte in Boulogne-sur-Mer in 1840. This drawing is undoubtedly a memory of war. It is a barracks of officers from a camp under the Monarchie de Juillet.
