Description

Armchair with queen backrest, flat, circular in carved, molded and waxed walnut wood, Louis XVI period. Beautiful woodwork; ample backrest in medallion pinched on the edge, straight armrests with very flared cuffs resting on consoles with pilasters raised with acanthus leaves forming part of the belt by their implantations directly above the front foot. Two rectangular connecting blocks extend the visual harmony by unifying consoles, belt crosspieces and legs. This one consists of four legs. All are tapered with deep rudent grooves, strangled in their tops pinched at their bases. The whole of the woodwork is harmoniously traversed by a rich ornamentation of interlacing and sequins emerging from the acanthus of the armrest supports that unite without weighing down its
