Description

Large sculpture representing a stag, a doe and a fawn, sculpted by M. Leducq (1879-1955) French artist from the beginning of the 20th century. This large-scale work has a nuanced brown patina with golden highlights. It rests on a thick slab of gray marble veined with white. A majestic stag is surrounded by a doe and her fawn. The moving group advances serenely, heads raised, gazing into the distance. The artist highlights the beauty of these charismatic animals and emphasizes the softness of their curves. This animal work will attract attention with its slenderness and large size.

Period: Early 20th century
