Description

Furniture at support height composed of two identical doors on the front, the centers of which are decorated with a rosewood veneer of four leaves (known as butterfly wings). Around it, a net of stained wood and lemon tree is embellished at the corners with Greek corners. The whole is surrounded by a perimeter of 3 cm in amaranth. The right door with authentic lock has a working key. We find a bronze entrance on each door, decorated with laurel flowers. This in-between piece of furniture opens onto a storage space with two shelves on cleats and racks. The inside of the doors feature a beautiful light mahogany surrounded by amaranth and the original brass top and bottom clasps. This small elegant piece of furniture has two uprights on each side, slightly rounded at the top and chamfered on the greater part with the same composition of rosewood, stained wood and lemon tree fillet. In the lower part, each very slightly curved foot ends in a front and rear hoof. Both sides of this piece of furniture are also treated with the same design in the choice of woods and the arrangement of the doors. This small piece of furniture is topped with an original gray marble decorated with white, matching the shape of the piece of furniture with a groove around it. Harmonious and elegant, this Transitional Louis XV / Louis XVI sideboard will easily find its place in a refined interior.
