Description

The scene depicts a tavern interior with resting soldiers enjoying a convivial moment in the background, while the first floor is occupied by armor, banners and infantry percussion instruments. In the center, a nice boy accompanied by a small dog takes advantage of the moment to give a few beats to the drum of the soldiers.

Period: Middle of the 17th century

Author: Dutch painter of the middle of the 17th century close to Pieter De Bloot

Pieter de Bloot (Rotterdam, 1601 - Rotterdam, November 6, 1658) was a Dutch painter. He specializes in making rustic genre scenes, deviating from Flemish examples but retaining a certain introspective, typically Dutch character.
