Description

An attractive mantel clock with an alarm function, dating from the late 19th century (circa 1870-1890) and manufactured in Germany by Royal Bonn (Franz Anton Melhem). Designed in the Rococo style, the faience casing features hand-painted decoration in the Delft style--rendered in shades of blue and white--depicting a windmill; it is in perfect condition. The movement has been serviced and is in full working order. There is a small hairline crack on the dial near the 5 o'clock position. Height: 29 cm; width: 19 cm. Carefully packaged, with tracking and insurance included.
