generous eagerness to help the Society in the realization

Alexandre-Denis-Abel de Pujol or Abel de Pujol (30 January 1785 in Valenciennes - 29 September 1861 in Paris) was a French painter. He was a student of David and his own students included Alexandre-Gabriel Decamps and Emile Levy. He painted the ceiling of the grand staircase at the Louvre as well as the galerie de Diane at Fontainebleau and the ceiling of the Bourse de Paris. A member of the Institut de France, he was an officer of the Legion of Honor.
