Description

Nice group in silvered bronze "tenderness" by Henri Coutheillas. All the spirit of the art-nouveau era in this remarkably soft double bust of women. The faces are very fine and emotional... One has her eyes closed, immersed in her dreams, and the other seems to be in her thoughts, in a tender movement of rapprochement. Very fine carving finesse. For information, Henri Coutheillas is a remarkable and recognized sculptor, we owe him the famous sculpture of the "Oak and the reed" and the sculpture of the "kiss at the source" today in the gardens of the Elysée. Piece signed by the artist and the foundry "Godard father foundry Paris", centenary foundry in Bagneux near Paris, still existing today. 38 cm wide and 27.5 high Very pretty art-nouveau piece, very tender...
