Description

The ceramic artifact, dated 1589, originates from central Italy and is attributed to the artistic tradition of Spoleto. The piece, from the Renaissance period, features an elaborate polychrome decoration, entirely hand-painted.

The heraldic crest at the center reflects the affiliation with a noble family from Spoleto, highlighting the object's prestige and commissioned origin. The ceramic has undergone a conservative restoration: the damaged parts have been reassembled and discreetly repaired, with some imperfections intentionally left visible to preserve the historical authenticity of the artifact.
