Description

Portrait of a hunter

French school, early 19th century

Portrait of a hunter, seated, he seems amused by a situation he is witnessing, his finger points to the subject of his amusement and lets the spectator's imagination build the scene.

A bird placed on the table with the bottle of wine and the glass are reminiscent of Dutch still lifes as well as the reflection of a window on the bottle. This expressive portrait is reminiscent of the expressive figures of Josphe Ducreux (1735-1802).

The frame bears a cartel "Le Garde Chasse"

French school of the 19th century.
